

The health and safety of our VIS friends and volunteers is one of our top priorities at Volunteers In Service. As the Coronavirus (COVID-19) has evolved quickly, VIS would like to respond to how this affects those we serve.

We encourage all VIS volunteers to suspend any face-to-face contact with their VIS friend for the next 4 weeks. We do encourage communication through phone calls, facetime, notes in the mail or email or any other creative ways that you can think of to encourage and support the people you are connected to through VIS. Also, this is a great time to check on your neighbors and assist where needed.

Should someone need assistance with basic human needs, please contact the VIS office and we will help process the need by discussing options. We will make every effort to assist our friends during this time in ways that are in compliance with our government recommendations.

For referring agencies, VIS will continue to take and process referrals but will not be soliciting volunteers for 4 weeks.

The VIS staff is standing by to answer phone calls or emails if you are unsure how to handle benevolence requests. Let's process situations together for the benefit and safety of everyone.
